Speaker and Speaker

There is a tale to the effect that when Hon. Thomas Bracken held the little boy to the gallery of the house of representatives. Looking on at the more numerous branch of the federal legislature the child asked, "Father, who is that large man sitting in the pulpit with a mallet in his hand?" "He, my son," replied the father, "is the house of representatives." "And who are those other men sitting in semicircles around him?" inquired the tiny chap. "They are the speakers of the house of representatives," answered parliament—Champ Clark in Leslie's Weekly.

Celery.
To revive limp celery, put it into boiling water for a second or so and then into a bowl of cold water, allowing the water to run over it for some time. This will make it quite fresh and crisp for the table.
